

SENIORS RECALL EHS MEMORIES

Many Memories Of EHS Will Never Be Forgotten

By BRUCE HANSEN, JOHN HUGHES, ED KINGSHOTT, PAT LAROSE

In the last three years as seniors we have experienced many key events. Some we will never forget. Whether it was a President's assassination, a football victory, or the first day of school, these events will stay in a senior's mind the rest of his life.

Members of the KODAK staff talked with some of the graduating class of 1966 to find out what memories they have of some of the key events in their stay at Everett High.

First day of school:

ROBINSON HAD PLANS TO SET THE WORLD ON FIRE

"When I first came here as a sophomore I thought I was going to set the world on fire, but it didn't turn out that way," said John Robinson.

"I had it all planned out. I was going to be above everyone else. I was going to be the great guy with the high grade point average."

"I remember that first day of school when I was a sophomore. I was a real religious guy, and I tried to get on the good side of the teachers."

UNEVENTFUL PERSON

"Besides that, everything went perfect for me. I didn't get lost, I didn't lose my registration card, and I didn't cry. I was sort of an uneventful person that first day."

"When I first came here, I was expecting one great big party after another."

"I also remember how I was looking forward to coming to EHS, and now I am surely looking forward to getting out of here."

"Furthermore, I came here looking forward to watching the juniors and seniors have big numbers over the lawn."

SENIOR GIRLS

"When I was a sophomore I wasn't impressed with the senior girls."

"Another thing I remember is that first day in math when I walked into Blanche's room and I found out she was the teacher. Then someone else walked in and asked her who Mrs. Kosche is and when she told him she was Mrs. Kosche, he said, 'Oh, I

JOHN ROBINSON thought you were a sophomore.

"One thing I'll never forget is walking down to the annex gym in this Washington weather. When I think about it, I feel every sophomore should get stuck down there for at least one semester."

BAKER'S DEATH WAS SAD EVENT
Ken Garth Baker will be long remembered by EHS, but especially by the Class of '66.

This is the year Ken would have graduated, but because of an unfortunate accident on Saturday, September 19, 1964, he won't.

Everyone who knew Ken probably remembers the way they heard the news of his death.

It was sad and shocking news for all of us.

That night, the football team went to Meadowdale and won the game for Ken, who should have played in that game.

The next week of school was not a normal one, especially the day of Ken's funeral.

Those who attended the funeral will remember the solemnity of the services, the misty rain at the cemetery, and the taps played for Ken and his father.

IN MEMORY OF KEN
The memory of Ken is strong at EHS. Last year a portion of the Nesika was dedicated to him.

And a fund has been set up for the Garth Baker Scholarship. This would be a possible donation for the money you and your class or group make on Campus Day. 'SHHH, SHUT UP!'

IT'S QUIET DAY
On March 8, Everett High attempted to do something that few high schools could accomplish. This was Quiet Day.

Quiet Day was termed as being "just great" by senior Dennis Stewart.

"It went over good with everyone cooperating. It showed the school was ready to give up gabbing and support the team in the District Tournament that night."

"I had a little bit of doubt as to whether we could accomplish this, but I knew if anyone could, we could. When Cascade failed to accomplish a quiet day after fifteen minutes, I knew we had to be successful."

"I don't think there are many schools that could accomplish this. There are not many that have our school spirit. That's what did it."

DENNIS STEWART

"The faculty also encouraged us by not conducting lessons that day. I don't believe there would be this faculty support in many other schools."

"Even though we lost the game I don't think Quiet Day lost its meaning. It had nothing to do with us losing the game. If anything, it helped the team."

"It would be nice if this could become an annual event. It would be something to look forward to and the students would try to be quieter than they were the previous year."

DURR RECALLS CONFUSION AT FIRST PEP ASSEMBLY

Then, also, there are a good many seniors who will remember that first pep assembly when they were sophomores.

One senior, Dennis Durr, said,

"As soon as I walked into the gym I was confused. There were so many students and the gym seemed so big at the time. Also, I didn't have any idea of where I was suppose to sit."

"Then all of a sudden the seniors started to do their yell, I finally found the sophomore section where I was to sit. I didn't know what the seniors were doing, and worse yet, when we started to do the sophomore yell, I still didn't know what the heck was going on."

"Of course the seniors and juniors giving us the old thumbs down bit and their stamping big feet didn't seem to help matters very much."

"The pep skits were all new to me. I didn't like most of the skits and they didn't add much to the pep assemblies, except to make them longer."

"However, I thought that first pep assembly was great. It was so completely different from the junior high school pep assemblies. The enthusiasm and the great school spirit at these assemblies really surprised me at first."

"By the time the pep assembly was over I felt enthusiastic and had a strong sense of school spirit in me. Naturally, I immediately had to find out when the next pep assembly would be and I wondered if they would all be as great as this one had been."

QUEENSANDY REMEMBERS REIGN

Homecoming has been an important event for all seniors in their three years at Everett High.

The excitement and enthusiasm has been impressive to everyone, but for Sandy McNiven, 1965 Homecoming Queen, the importance has increased with each year.

Sandy remembers, "As a sophomore I was most impressed with the coronation assembly."

In her junior year Sandy wasn't so much in awe of the whole event, she was too busy working on the junior class display.

Sandy said, "Our display took first place and I was very happy but I was glad when Judy Clough was elected queen."

Then in her senior year, Sandy became our Homecoming Queen.

On the day of the coronation, Sandy knew she was queen only a few minutes before it was announced to the entire student body.

Standing back stage, the five girls were nervous and tense, then Mr. Crumbaugh began telling them stories of how he had told the queens in the past who had won.

Sandy said, "He told us one way he used was to put his hand on the winner's shoulder and then he walked over and put his hand on my shoulder."

"I started crying."

As Sandy walked down the aisle of the auditorium she was still in a daze and she only saw a few of her friends.

She continued, "I was happy to see Judy Clough, last year's queen, in the front row. I hope to be sitting there next year."

When asked what she thought of Homecoming as the queen, Sandy commented, "You see a whole different side of Homecoming as queen."

SANDY McNIVEN

"As a sophomore and junior, the displays and game were most important to me, but this year I went to luncheons, made speeches, and met people."

"When it was all over I was both sad and relieved. Sad because I knew it was over and it was the last time just like my senior year, and relieved because my schedule wasn't so busy and I had time to think about it."

SENIOR RECALLS JFK'S DEATH

Don Seim

On Nov. 22, 1963, today's seniors were sophomores. During third period that day an announcement came over the broadcasting system that the President had had an accident.

About fifteen minutes later the final word came. John F. Kennedy was dead.

A senior who recalled that day is Don Seim. "I was in Mrs. Kosche's geometry class when we heard the first bulletin. At first I thought that something had gone wrong with his back again.

"Since we had no idea that he had been shot we were not very serious. Then someone half jokingly said, 'Who would be the President if both he and Lyndon Johnson had been killed?'"

"Then we received the final word that Kennedy was dead. There was a big groan. Mrs. Kosche did not say anything. The class was quiet and I was sick.

"That was the most solemn day I can ever remember. There was hardly a sound going around at lunchtime or in the halls.

"The first thing I thought about when he died was that his two little children had no father.

"I hope such a day will never come again."

REGIONAL TOURNNEY

The 1965 State High School tournament was Pat Woolcock's first. It was first for many of this year's graduating class, too.

"I was a little anxious and a little scared but Louie Hobson and I had been talking before, and we'd figured that we merited getting this far.

"We went down to the University of Washington gym the Wednesday before to practice and we had a good workout. I think Garfield expected us to show up in overalls and country boots with cow manure on them because they thought we were from the sticks. I heard that they called us country boys.

"Wednesday the pressure hadn't started to build up yet; by Friday it had come. It was very quiet on the bus ride down. While getting dressed, Louie kept talking to us, telling us not to get scared or psyched out. I think we all were a little scared.

"While we were warming up, I didn't pay any attention to Garfield because I was too busy concentrating on what I was doing. After the game started, everything went fast, everyone hustled, we all tried our hardest, but it's hard to beat a 65 per cent shooting average.

"After the game was over, we were all pretty down. The thing that brought us back was the student body standing outside our dressing room yelling, 'We're proud big team, We're proud.' It was the greatest thing I've ever heard, to know that your school is behind you, even if you do lose."

'65 JUNIOR PROM BEST IN EHS HISTORY

The junior prom that was sponsored by the Class of '66 has been said to be the best in the history of EHS.

Nancy Russo and Judy Viger have only been to two junior proms, but of the two they felt that the present senior class' prom was by far the best.

Nancy said, "I think it was so good because there was so much you could do with the theme. The theme was developed through murals, a clock, trees, a key hole picture scene and entrance, and a tunnel which was much like the one Alice fell through to get to 'Wonderland.'"

"It could be I'm prejudiced because I was on the committee but I think our decorations were very good.

"The murals depicting different scenes from 'Alice in Wonderland' were what really developed the theme."

Judy commented, "The development of decorations is what made it so good.

"At first I thought it was a silly theme, but when it was finished I realized it was really good and quite cute."

The 1965 junior prom is one that will be remembered for a long time by anyone who witnessed the EHS gym disguised as "Wonderland."

HARTMAN TELLS OF SCHOOL SPIRIT

JOHN HARTMAN

The school spirit of Everett High has always been great. Partly due to traditions set by such coaches as Enoch Bagshaw and Gil Dobie, our athletic teams have piled up great records.

While the teams were gaining renown, the support of the student body generally edged onwards with the years. This has tended to create a great amount of school spirit.

Graduating senior John Hartman recalled the school spirit when he came to EHS from North Junior.

"The school spirit was far better than it was at the junior high's. It's more noticeable with such things as the white shirt section at the basketball games.

"As for other schools having our school spirit it would be possible if they work at it hard. I don't know if too many other schools could have a white shirt section at basketball games. Other schools have a lack of initiative that you will not find at Everett High.

"The school spirit is always around. You seldom see a time when there isn't any. The cheerleaders and song queens are always emphasizing it and telling the student body to keep it up."

Dave Burnam says: CHANGES AT EHS SHIFTED TRADITION

Since the seniors were sophomores, the structure of EHS has changed in many ways. Dave Burnam recalls a few of these changes.

"When I was a sophomore, they built the new student service building onto the main building," said Dave. "This destroyed the tradition of the seniors fighting with sophomores and juniors who dared to trespass on the senior lawn.

"However, the construction of the student service building was duly justified by removing the obsolete old portables.

Dave Burnam

"Another change is the size of the hall in the basement of the main building. I can remember when it was so narrow that we had to pass through it single file.

"When I came back as a junior, I was also astounded at the complete change of the interior of EHS. After the ceilings had been lowered; the walls had been made sturdy so they didn't fall down or shake when you leaned against them; the new paint job was done, and the new lockers installed; the place was fit to be called Everett High School.
